American Indian Stories Zitkala-Sa,1921

American Indian Stories, Legends, and Other Writings Zitkala-Sa,2003-02-25 A thought-provoking collection of searing prose from a Dakota Sioux woman that covers race, identity, assimilation, and perceptions of Native American culture Zitkala-Sa (also known as Gertrude Simmons Bonnin) wrestled with the conflicting influences of American Indian and white culture throughout her life. Raised on a Sioux reservation, she was educated at boarding schools that enforced assimilation and was witness to major events in white-Indian relations in the late 1800s and early 1900s. Tapping her troubled personal history, Zitkala-Sa created stories that illuminate the tragedy and complexity of the American Indian experience. In evocative prose laced with political savvy, she forces new thinking about the perceptions, assumptions, and customs of both Sioux and white cultures and raises issues of assimilation, identity, and race relations that remain compelling today.

American Indian Stories and Old Indian Legends Zitkala-Sa,2014-07-01 Two essential collections by a noted Sioux author: American Indian Stories assembles short stories as well as autobiographical and political essays, and Old Indian Legends features tales from the oral tradition.

American Indian Stories Zitkala-Sa,2013-05-23 A wigwam of weather-stained canvas stood at the base of some irregularly ascending hills. A footpath wound its way gently down the sloping land till it reached the broad river bottom; creeping through the long swamp grasses that bent over it on either side, it came out on the edge of the Missouri. Here, morning, noon, and evening, my mother came to draw water from the muddy stream for our household use. Always, when my mother started for the river, I stopped my play to run along with her. She was only of medium height. Often she was sad and silent, at which times her full arched lips were compressed into hard and bitter lines, and shadows fell under her black eyes. Then I clung to her hand and begged to know what made the tears fall. Hush; my little daughter must never talk about my tears; and smiling through them, she patted my head and said, Now let me see how fast you can run today. Whereupon I tore away at my highest possible speed, with my long black hair blowing in the breeze.

American Indian Stories By Zitkala-Sa (Annotated Edition) Zitkala-Sa,2021-03-11 American Indian Stories is a collection of childhood stories, allegorical fictions and essays written by Sioux writer and activist Zitkala-Sa. First published in 1921, American Indian Stories details the hardships encountered by Zitkala-Sa and other Native Americans in the missionary and manual labour schools. The autobiographical details contrast her early life on the Yankton Indian Reservation and her time as a student at White's Manual Labour Institute and Earlham College. The collection includes legends and stories from Sioux oral tradition, along with an essay titled America's Indian Problem, which advocates rights for Native Americans and calls for a greater understanding of Native American cultures. American Indian Stories offers a unique view into a society that is often overlooked though that society still persists to this day. The story begins with a description of the big path that leads from Zitkala-Sa's childhood wigwam to a river which, in turn, makes its way to The Edge of Missouri. Her mother would draw water from this river for household use. Zitkala-Sa would play at her mother's side, noting that she was often sad and silent. At the age of seven, Zitkala-Sa describes herself as 'wild' and 'as free as the wind that blew her hair'. Recounting a conversation with her mother on one of their return trips from the river, Zitkala-Sa told her that when she is older like her 17-year-old cousin Warca-Ziwin, she will come and get water for her. Zitkala-Sa's mother responded, If the paleface does not take away from us the river we drink.

American Indian Stories Zitkala-Sa, 2019-01-04 Lecturer; Author of Old Indian Legends, Americanize The First American, and other stories; Member of the Woman's National Foundation, League of American Pen-Women, and the Washington Salon There is no great; there is no small; in the mind that causeth all 1921.

Old Indian Legends and American Indian Stories Zitkala-Sa Simmons, 2025-05-10 Old Indian Legends is a collection of 14 Sioux stories retold by Yankton Dakota writer Zitkala-Sa, published in 1901. The author's primary purpose was to preserve the traditional narratives of her people, particularly amidst concerns regarding the impact of assimilation on the tribe's youth. American Indian Stories comprises autobiographical essays and narratives that were first published in 1921. This book provides an insightful account of Zitkala-Sa's experiences as a Dakota Sioux woman, emphasizing the cultural challenges faced by Indigenous peoples in America. Through detailed storytelling, she explores her childhood, education, and the complexities of maintaining Native traditions alongside Western influences.

American Indian Stories Gertrude Bonnin, Zitkala-Sa, 2019-09-20 American Indian Stories, first published in 1921, is a collection of childhood stories, allegorical fiction, and an essay. One of the most famous Sioux writers and activists of the modern era, Zitkala-Sa (Gertrude Bonnin) recalled legends and tales from oral tradition and used experiences from her life and community to educate others about the Yankton Sioux. Determined, controversial, and visionary, she creatively worked to bridge the gap between her own culture and mainstream American society and advocated for Native rights on a national level, writer and reformer who strove to expand opportunities for Native Americans and to safeguard their cultures.

Zitkala-Sa David Gerald, 2021-06-13 In 1883, Sarah Winnemucca, a Paiute Indian from western Nevada, penned Life

among the Piutes: Their Wrongs and Claims. Winnemucca was an activist for reservation conditions, the problems of federal policy toward Indians, and corruption in the Bureau of Indian Affairs (Fowler in Winnemucca 3). Catherine S. Fowler asserts that Winnemucca's work is one of the first, if not the first published Native American autobiography written by a woman. (Fowler in Winnemucca 3). Twenty-odd years later, Zitkala-Sa began to have her short fiction and autobiographical stories printed in the likes of Harper's and the Atlantic Monthly. Instead of one book, Zitkala-Sa's autobiography first appeared as a serial in Harper's (Zitkala-Sa xviii). Though the critics here cited, along with many others, have placed these women's writings under the genre umbrella of autobiography, and though my reading reveals that there are many ways that these life writings fundamentally differ from autobiography's genre conventions. My study of the literature of Native Americans suggests that Native people have appropriated aspects of Euroamerican culture and literacy in order to serve their own purposes as a matter of survivance. American Indian Stories Sa-Zitkala,2023-04 American Indian Stories by Zitkala-Sa is a collection of autobiographical essays and short stories that offer a powerful and insightful look into the experiences of Native Americans at the turn of the 20th century. The book is divided into two parts: the first part recounts Zitkala-Sa's own experiences growing up as a member of the Sioux tribe on a reservation in South Dakota, and her struggles to reconcile her traditional Native American upbringing with the demands of assimilation into white American culture. The second part of the book contains a series of short stories that explore the themes of cultural identity, loss of tradition, and the impact of colonialism on Native American communities. Through her writing, Zitkala-Sa highlights the ways in which Native Americans were forced to give up their cultural practices and beliefs in order to assimilate into white American society. Zitkala-Sa's writing is deeply personal and vivid, bringing to life the beauty and complexity of Native American culture, as well as the challenges and injustices faced by Native Americans in the face of colonization and assimilation.

American Indian Stories Zitkala-Sa,2003-01-01 Zitkala-Sa (Gertrude Bonnin) recalls legends and tales from oral tradition and uses experiences from her life and community to educate others about the Yankton Sioux.

American Indian Stories Zitkala-Sa,Susan Rose Dominguez,2005 American Indian Stories (1921) is remarkable for being perhaps the first literary work by a Native American woman created without the mediation of a non-Native interpreter or collaborator. Zitkala-Sa vividly articulates her disillusionment with the harshness of American Indian boarding schools and the corruption of government institutions ostensibly established to help Native peoples. At the same time, Zitkala-Sa's collection of autobiographical essays and short stories charts the progression of the author's estrangement from her Dakota people that her colonial education inevitably fostered. Much more than an indictment against U.S. attempts at Native deculturation, American Indian stories portrays one Dakota woman's spirited and successful efforts to resist the restrictions she felt in both reservation life and Euroamerican assimilation--Back cover.

American Indian Stories and Old Indian Legends (Royal Collector's Edition) (Case Laminate Hardcover with Jacket) Zitkala-Sa, 2021-01-17 American Indian Stories details the hardships encountered by the Yankton Dakota writer Zitkala-Sa in missionary schools. Old Indian Legends is a collection of 14 Sioux stories that she learned as child and had gathered from various tribes.

American Indian Stories Zitkala-Sa Gertrude Simmons Bonnin, 2018-08-13 American Indian stories: Large print by Zitkala-Sa (Red Bird; also Gertrude Simmons Bonnin) A unique combination of autobiography and fiction which represents an attempt to merge cultural critique with aesthetic form, especially surrounding such fundamental matters as religion. We are delighted to publish this classic book as part of our extensive Classic Library collection. Many of the books in our collection have been out of print for decades, and therefore have not been accessible to the general public. The aim of our publishing program is to facilitate rapid access to this vast reservoir of literature, and our view is that this is a significant literary work, which deserves to be brought back into print after many decades. The contents of the vast majority of titles in the Classic Library have been scanned from the original works. To ensure a high quality product, each title has been meticulously hand curated by our staff. Our philosophy has been guided by a desire to provide the reader with a book that is as close as possible to ownership of the original work. We hope that you will enjoy this wonderful classic work, and that for you it becomes an enriching experience.

American Indian Stories Zitkala-Sa,2022-08-30 LARGE PRINT EDITION. American Indian Stories (1921) is a collection of stories and essays from Yankton Dakota writer Zitkála-Sá. Published while Zitkála-Sá was at the height of her career as an artist and activist, American Indian Stories collects the author's personal experiences, the legends and stories passed down through Sioux oral tradition, and her own reflections on the mistreatment of American Indians nationwide. In My Mother, Zitkála-Sá remembers the walk she would take with her mother to the river, where they would gather water to use in their wigwam. This simple chore becomes a cherished tradition between the two, allowing Zitkála-Sá's mother to educate her on the circumstances that led their people to the reservation, depriving them of land and life itself. The Legends traces Zitkála-Sá's childhood experience of learning from the oral tradition passed down from the Dakota elders. In The Coffee Making, she remembers the first time she made coffee. While her mother has gone out for the day, an elder pays a visit to their wigwam. Remembering that her mother usually makes coffee for visitors, Zitkála-Sá attempts to play hostess to her visitor, who humors her and takes the time to share stories about his life and their people. American Indian Stories is a charming and politically conscious collection of stories from one of the leading American Indian writers of her generation, a committed activist and true voice for change who saw through her own eyes the lives and experiences of countless others. With a beautifully designed cover and professionally typeset manuscript, this edition of Zitkála-Sá's American Indian Stories is a classic of American Indian literature reimagined for modern readers.
