How do I show the value of a #define at compile-time? I know that this is a long time after the original query, but this may still be useful. This can be done in GCC using the stringify operator `"#"`, but it requires two additional stages to be defined first. `#define XSTR(x) STR(x) #define STR(x) #x` The value of a macro can then be displayed with: `#pragma message "The value of ABC: " XSTR(ABC)` See: 3.4 Stringification in the gcc online ...

While you can use it for defining constants actually used by your code, it is a bad idea for several reasons which have been pointed out in the answers below.

Why are #ifndef and #define used in C++ header files? I have been seeing code like this usually in the start of header files: `#ifndef HEADERFILE_H #define HEADERFILE_H` And at the end of the file is `#endif` What is the purpose of this? `c++` - 'static const' vs. '#define' - Stack Overflow Oct 28, 2009 · Is it better to use static const variables than `#define` preprocessor? Or does it maybe depend on the context? What are advantages/disadvantages for each method?

Is it possible to use a if statement inside #define? There are multiple problems with your macro: it expands to a statement, so you cannot use it as an expression the arguments are not properly parenthesized in the expansion: invoking this macro with anything but variable names or constants will produce problems. the arguments are evaluated multiple times: if you invoke the macro with arguments that have side effects, such ...

Is there a way to do a #define inside of another #define? You could for example do an ifdef guard to initialize a variable in a macro but make sure it isn't declared twice. I'm sure there are other possible use cases.
